ANGEL OF DEATH LURKING ABOUT

When Aged Woman Was Doing Her Usual Morning Chores About the House.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. SMITH

Able to Build Fire For Breakfast,
But Lay Cold in Death a Few Hours Afterwards.

Mrs. Mary Smith, an aged and respected woman of West Second street, died this morning at 8:30 o'clock and while she has not been in good health for many years her death was wholly unexpected as she was able to build a fire for the breakfast a few hours before and only last evening visited her daughter who lives nearby.

Mrs. Smith was born in Cynthiana, Kentucky, but removed to Rush county with her parents when she was three years of age, settling in Milroy. She was seventy-four years of age last October and had been in ill health for the past fifteen years.

Deceased is survived by the following sons and daughters, Mrs. Kate Beatty, Amos Smith, Miss Alice Smith, Jesse Smith, Mrs. George Altmeyer, James Smith and Mrs. Ol Henley.

The funeral services will be held at the residence in West Second street Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock conducted by Dr. V. W. Tevis, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church.

FUNERAL SERVICES BRIEF

Christian Scientists Conduct Funeral of Mrs. Arthur B. Irvin.

The funeral services of Mrs. A. B. Irvin were held Saturday evening at the residence in North Main street Saturday evening, conducted by Mr. W. O. Freeman of the Christian Scientists assisted by Rev. R. W. Abberley. The services were brief. Mr. Jesse Pugh sang two solos from the Christian Science hymnal. Interment occurred Sunday morning at East Hill cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS A PIONEER WOMAN

Mrs. Sarah McCoy, Who Has Been in Failing Health For Some Time, Succumbs.

SONS ATTEND THE FUNERAL

Mrs. Sarah McCoy, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lon Innis, north of Milroy, last Wednesday night, was buried Saturday at Greensburg, after brief funeral services at the Innis home. Mrs. McCoy was seventy-eight years of age and had been in failing health for some time. Besides her daughter, deceased leaves two sons, Wilbur McCoy, postmaster of Guthrie, Oklahoma, and F. G. McCoy of Omaha, Nebraska. Miss Helen McCoy accompanied her father, Wilbur McCoy to the funeral here. All of them returned home today.

Taking all her possessions into consideration, there are six colored persons to every white in the British empire.

HOT ONES FROM SPARKS

Read the Riot Act to Delinquent Attorneys in Open Court.

Saturday was divorce day in the Shelby circuit court and a number of cases were set for hearing, says the Shelbyville Republican. Some of the attorneys, who were interested in the cases, were not ready for trial, and what Judge Sparks said to them for delaying the trials was a plenty. He gave them to understand that when a case was set for hearing and had not been compromised or dismissed, that it was supposed to be heard at that time.

SHAKESPEAR OWES MUCH TO THE BIBLE

Was Shown by Dr. Tevis in the Third of Series of Lectures-Sermons
Last Night.

ATTENDED BY A LARGE CROWD

Rev. V. W. Tevis delivered the third of a series of Sunday evening lecture-sermons last night at the St. Paul's M. E. church on the general topic "Shakespeare's debt to the Bible." He showed by illustration how the greatest of all poets owed all of his best thoughts to the bible. Rev. Tevis quoted from the works of Shakespeare and then from the bible, pointing out their close relationship in thought as well as in expression. That Shakespeare believed in the inner self in the idea that every man had to make amends with his own conscience for every evil deed committed is evidenced by the quotations throughout his works.

OLD MINSTREL MAN IS NOW PREACHING

Billy Williams, World's Famous Clog Dancer, Conducting Series of Meetings in Connersville

IS A TEMPERANCE EXHORTER

The Connersville Examiner says: "Billy" Williams, an old time minstrel, now a temperance exhorter, is in the city and will conduct a revival at the Salvation Army hall.

Years ago Williams was one of the famous minstrels of this country and Europe. He won the world's championship at clog dancing in London, and as a member of Webb & Fields and Primrose & West's combinations he gained quite a reputation.

Williams is not an old man yet and he can shake his feet as well as ever, but he has forsaken the stage and his work now is that of saving men.

LOUD PEDAL ON GAMBLING VICE

Rev. Abberley Takes a Fall Out of Professional as Well as Parlor
Gambling.

DEALT SLEDGE HAMMER BLOWS

Would Rather See Men Playing Ball on Sunday Than to See Drinking and Carousing.

Rev. R. W. Abberley, speaking at the Main Street Christian church last night on the subject of card playing and gambling dealt some sledge hammer blows at this widespread vice and told with telling effect some of the evil results in breaking up happy homes that had come under his observation.

"Gambling, said the minister, 'is the staking of property to win or lose on mere hazard. It is a vicious and criminal practice because it ignores the law of equivalents. It is not gain for gain but something for nothing. It has been defined as 'robbery by mutual consent.' It is the enemy of true manly labor. It means money without work. Its maxim is 'proper self, sacrifice others.'

"The gambler has skill, but so has the bank robber. The fascination of the game is one of its chief sources of influence over its victims—no serpent ever charmed a bird with greater power. Gambling is not a isolated vice. It is associated with drinking, blasphemy and the strange woman whose steps lay hold on hell. It ruins homes, blasts the fragrant flower of love, debauches manhood and pulls down the pillars of honest business and pure society."

On the matter of card playing in the home Mr. Abberley said wherever cards are played in the parlor for money or prizes that place is the recruiting station for the gambling den. In principle there is no difference between playing cards for a china vase or a silver ornament and playing for a ten dollar bill. While the associations may be different the thing itself is gambling and is so regarded by law. The United States Postal authorities have recently ruled that no invitation to a card party where prizes are played for shall go through the United States mail, thus branding the practice with the same ignominy as the Louisiana lottery and other gambling schemes. Christian people at least for the honor of their good name and the Christian influence of their example should shun the card table. Love to God and man should inspire us to lay no stumbling stone or lure of evil in the pathway of the weak.

The speaker then suggested that true sport—games of skill and not of chance athletics and out-door exercises should be encouraged in every way. On the question of Sunday baseball he said while he did not endorse it he would rather see men play ball out in the sunshine than to sneak around saloons or out of the way places to drink and play cards and gamble.

A "SHARK" LOOKOUT

Greensburg Review: Hereafter Rush county farmers with sporting blood in their veins will be eyed with suspicion by the Greensburg gentlemen who make a living by their wits.

THEY WILL CHOKE.

Connersville News: Shelbyville's racing association will not be in evidence this year. They assert they could not hope for success in a "dry" town, but the real reason, it is said, is that they fear it would be too dusty.

LECTURE WAS THE BEST THIS YEAR

Frank C. Travers Created Favorable Impression on Audience at
M. E. Church

LECTURE ON "THE LIBERATOR"

Musical Program Served as Fitting Close to Meetings as Was the Best Ever Rendered.

"However deplorable the deficiencies of the Christian creeds may be, in the end they work for good," said Frank C. Travers of Bloomfield, Iowa, in his address before the Men's Big Meeting on the subject, "The Liberator" at the St. Paul's M. E. church yesterday afternoon.

"While in my home town several years ago," said the speaker, I heard a man, one of unusual ability, say that the Christian religion had given the world a setback of over one thousand years. I do not believe this statement, and I do not think that any other man with a sound mind believes it. And there are many good reasons for this disbelief. Not a single page of creditable history has been written since the birth of Christ, that has had a retarding influence on civilization. An individual who would make such a statement is either ignorant of the real facts of the case, is falsifying and purposely misrepresenting them, or is insane. And the last and greatest of all the reasons for not believing such an assertion is that Christ and his teachings are always absent from retrogression.

"The opinions of eminent men in the field of science and great learning of the Christ, who is heralded as the leader and savior of all men, differ to a great extent. Sceptics, who will not under on consideration acknowledge the divinity of Christ, are willing to admit that Christ is a leader of men and as an ideal his equal can never be found. When the enemies of the Christian religion are willing to grant this, there is something more to it than mere fiction. The effects of Christianity would not alone produce the high standard of living, but it is the living of thoughts and truths of Christianity that bring about the desired effect.

"At one time," said Mr. Travers, "I was not of the opinion that foreign missions were accomplishing any good, but after careful research in the subject, I find that they have accomplished more for the good of mankind than any other institution. I once believed that the bulk of the money given for foreign missions was stolen, that a certain portion of it was used to buy red handkerchiefs for the young Africans on the dark continent, and that the remainder of it was used to send ministerial failures to the foreign field in China to keep the heathen Chinese from going where he belonged after death. But I find that I have been very much mistaken, that foreign missions have done more good for the advancement of civilization than any other one force; that wherever Christianity has entered, great advancement has been noticed and numerous instances can be cited that will prove this fact."

NEWSPAPERS ARE MERGED

Greenfield Reporter and Evening Star
Have Consolidated Interests.

It goes without dispute that Mr. Travers created a decided impression on his audience and expressions of general satisfaction were heard on all sides from those that were present. The large audience gave evidence of their pleasure at frequent intervals during the hour and one-half that the lecturer remained on the platform.

The musical program served as a fitting close for the meetings, as it was the best that has ever been heard. The orchestra was at its best and the young ladies glee club, that sang two beautiful selections, was up to the standard that has been set by its previous performances.

SMALL POX FOUND ON THE COUNTY LINE

Severe Case of Reppellant Disease
Develops at Clarksburg in the Morford Family.

QUARANTINE IS ESTABLISHED

Says the Greensburg News: Dr. D. W. Weaver, secretary of the Decatur county board of health, was called to the home of George Morford, three miles east of Clarksburg, Friday afternoon, where he found Mr. Morford the victim of an exceedingly well developed case of smallpox. Dr. C. G. Grover of this city is now attending the afflicted man, the case being a severe one, it is said.

In the same home, the son, John, aged about twenty-two years, is said to be taking the disease, although today he was not broken out and his condition is not near so serious looking as that of his father.

LOCAL BOY'S FRIEND IS PLACED IN JAIL

Jackie, Who Sailed Around the World
With Everett Pickard, Was Robbed in Cincinnati.

CAME WEST ON A FURLOUGH

Earl S. Salisbury, one of the seamen who traveled around the world with Everett Pickard of this city, who returned recently for a short furlough, is "in bad" at Hamilton, Ohio, according to the following story:

"Earl S. Salisbury of Frankfort, Ind., surrendered to the police tonight and asked the officers to notify the Marine Corps at Washington of his action. Salisbury was clad in a navy uniform and said he belonged on board the United States Gunboat Dixie, now at Pine Beach, Va. He says he obtained a leave of absence to visit his parents at Frankfort.

"While en route to that city he stopped off in Cincinnati, where he says he was robbed of all his money. Unable to reach his folks or his boat, he says he came to Hamilton to surrender. If his story is true Salisbury is a straggler and is not liable to punishment."

DRAMATIC WAS SCENE IN COURT

John Tribbey Fell to His Knees and Sobbed Like a Child—Touched Jurors' Heart.

WAS OVERCOME WITH EMOTION

Rushed to a Telephone to Call His Wife at Arlington But Could Hardly Speak to Her.

John Tribbey seems to have won a warm place in the hearts of the Connersville newspaper men for they handled him with gloves. Hardly a day passed but what they spoke of his gentle nature and kindly disposition. Of his demeanor at the close of the trial the Connersville Examiner says in part:

"On taking the bench Judge Gray asked if a verdict had been reached, and the foreman of the jury replied that they had agreed. The court read the verdict, acquitting the defendant.

"John Tribbey was overcome with emotion. Tears ran down his face and it was with great effort that he composed himself sufficiently to thank the jurors. He went to every member of the jury and shook his hand, then he clasped the hand of Judge Gray and of all the others in the court room at the time. There has probably never been another time in his life when John Tribbey was so happy.

"After the jury had been discharged Tribbey lost no time in going to the phone and calling up his wife at Arlington and telling her of the verdict.

"I'm acquitted," was all he could say to his wife.

"Many stories have been told of Tribbey's cruelty toward his wife. They may all be true, but he did the most natural thing he could do when he went to his wife and told her of the result of the case."

The Connersville News adds: "Tribbey sat, leaning forward, the picture of intense expectation while Judge Gray read 'We, the jury, find for the defendant, etc.' and as the decisive word was spoken Tribbey went down on his knees by the low table before him, hid his face in his folded arms and cried as little children cry. Every eye in the jury box was moist and those who had strolled in idly to hear the defendant's fate, laid their hands over their mouths and stole away on tiptoe."

WHITLA BOY MAY BE RETURNED NOW

Report at Sharon, Penn., Was Received With Pleasure by Relatives of the Lad.

LETTER RECEIVED BY THEM

It was reported at Sharon, Pa., shortly before 11 o'clock this morning that the Whitla family had assurances that Willit Whitla would be returned within forty-eight hours. It was said another letter had been received directing in what manner the money should be paid. All details of the negotiations were being carefully guarded, however.

BOTH ARE DANGEROUS.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, March 22.—The determination of the "liberal" element to take an active hand in the municipal campaign here has become apparent through the inquiries made of prospective candidates for mayor as to whether or not they are opposed to Sunday baseball. While the baseball season will be over before the election is held, the nominations will be made within the next two or three months, and it is apparent that whoever wins will have to tell where he stands. Because of the efforts of the ministers to raise a fund to have the new Sunday baseball law tested in court, the "liberal" element is afraid that it may be cheated of the fruits of its victory during the legislature. The new law applies to the entire state, but it was not a vital issue outside of Indianapolis, as Terre Haute, Evansville, Fort Wayne and other larger cities have had Sunday games for several years. It was represented to the legislators that thousands of laboring men here wanted Sunday baseball. This element is now showing a disposition to assert itself in the city campaign against any candidate who is unfavorable to Sunday baseball. The demands that are being made regarding Sunday baseball tend to confirm the opinion held by many politicians that neither party can win here this year by nominating a "straight-laced" candidate, and that whether the city is to be "tight" or "liberal" is likely to be the paramount issue. Both parties will attempt to nominate good men, but such as are "liberal minded" and not given to worrying if every law is not enforced strictly to the letter.

Marion county politicians are after Gov. Marshall for appointments. The fact that this district gave the governor a majority of nearly 5,000, which meant a loss of about 12,000 votes to the Republicans, is regarded by the party leaders here as sufficient reason why they should have the choicest plums. The governor is taking his time about shaking the plum tree. The delay is irritating to the horde of job-hunters, but the governor has the center of the stage and will move at his own pleasure. Right now he would like to do something, but he is entangled by the lines some of the applicants have laid. If the governor listens to the politicians here, Indianapolis will land all of the real good jobs. A strong effort is being made to obtain for Patrick J. Kelleher of Indianapolis appointment as adjutant general of the Indiana national guard. While Kelleher is not a for-sure military man, his friends say that he was connected with the guard several years ago. He is a traveling salesman and has the backing of the traveling men's organizations. He was on the ticket last year for state statistician, and he made a vigorous campaign for Governor Marshall, as well as himself. It is said that the governor would like to appoint Kelleher, and that he has assured his friends that he will do something for him. He will wait, however, until next autumn before he makes any change in the adjutant general's office. Charles Garrard, a well-known member of the national guard and a local Democratic worker, wants an appointment either as adjutant or quartermaster general. He has the indorsement of many of the officers of the guard, but there is no chance that both he and Kelleher will be appointed. The chances favor Kelleher now.

It was reported today that two attorneys called on Governor Marshall and informed him that O. A. Baker, the fugitive lobbyist, who was indicted on the charge of trying to bribe the late Representative Ananias Baker to vote against the Parke anti-cigarette bill, is contemplating returning to Indiana and is in very bad condition of health. An indictment is pending here but an effort, it is said, is being made to have it quashed. It is thought by many that Baker's friends have kept him posted on developments here, and when the death of Ananias Baker occurred the barriers against his safe return were removed, and he was advised that he could safely come back. Governor Marshall has issued a proclamation withdrawing the offer of $3,000 reward offered for Baker's apprehension, thus eliminating the possibility of any overzealous persons to claim a reward that is not their just due.

E. S. Shumaker, state superintendent of the anti-saloon league, in a statement today says a local option election probably will be held in Indianapolis soon. Arrangements are now being made quietly, Shumaker says, as many people are clamoring for an election here, but no actual steps towards calling one will be taken for the next sixty days. Twelfth district representatives of the anti-saloon league hold a conference here and practically decided to hold an election in Allen county and Ft. Wayne.

Injuries Will Prove Fatal.
Washington, March 22.—Lieutenant Semmes Read, U. S. N., President Taft's naval aide, who was thrown from his horse four days ago and badly crushed, is in such a condition that the attending surgeon offers no hope for his ultimate recovery.

Dead of Morphine Poisoning.
Cincinnati, March 22.—W. H. McAlister, a coal merchant of Madison, Ind., died last night at the city hospital as a result of morphine poisoning, taken with apparent suicidal intent.

NEED GIVEN TO FACTORY NEEDS

Illinois Commission Closes a Two-Years' Investigation.

WELFARE OF LABORING MEN

Report of State Industrial Commission Is Accompanied by a Bill Which the Legislature Will Be Asked to Enact Into a Law Providing For the Better Safeguarding of the Toolers of the State—Governor Deneen Will Give the Measure His Official Sanction.

Springfield, Ill., March 22.—The state industrial commission, following investigations extending over nearly two years, has made a report to Governor Deneen on the most advisable ways of providing for the health, safety and comfort of employees of factories, mercantile establishments, mills and workshops in the state. Its findings, which have to do with the welfare of every manual worker in the state, are embodied in a formal report, a bill drawn along the lines of this report, and a supplemental report of a conference of women workers of the state held in Chicago in December, 1908, under the auspices of the Women's Trade Union League. The bill, with the accompanying messages, will be transmitted to the senate and the house tomorrow, together with a message from the governor urging the passage of legislation along the lines outlined by the commission.

DEADLY "WINDY SHOT"

Six Lives Pay the Penalty in Coal Mine Near Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., March 22.—Six men were killed and seven injured in an explosion caused by a "windy shot" at the Sunnyside mines late Saturday afternoon. The dead are: Joseph Schenk, William Schnute, Samuel Coomes, Nelson Willingham, sr., Nelson Willingham, jr., John Pettit. The injured are: Fred Clark, David Brink, Jesse Craig, George Clausheidt, Charles Parrish, Joe Lyons, Alex Jarvis.

There were twenty-nine men in the mine when the explosion occurred. The disaster, it is thought, was caused by a charge of extra proportion, probably fired by Pettit. He was the only man burned. The other men were killed or injured by the force of the explosion and the accompanying sulphuric fumes.

The mines, so the survivors say, was swept as if by a whirlwind. The miners who had left their rooms and were in the passageway leading to the foot of the shaft were picked up like straws and blown hundreds of feet. The miners who were still in their rooms were not hurled off their feet, but soon succumbed to fumes, which for some time afterward seriously affected some of the members of the rescue party.

Lactare Medal to "Christian Read."
Notre Dame, Ind., March 22.—The Lactare medal, which is annually conferred by the University of Notre Dame on some lay member of the Catholic church in the United States for distinguished service in art, literature, science or philanthropy, will be given this year to Frances Christine Fisher Tiernan, author, better known in the literary world as Christian Reid. She has written nearly forty novels of distinct literary merit.

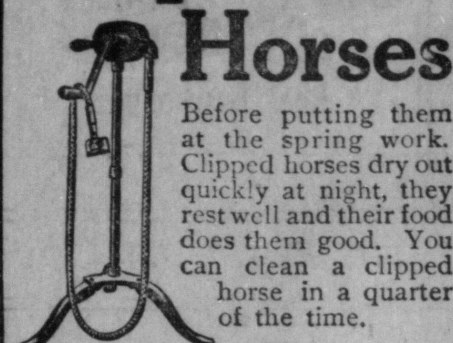

Cripples Do Team Work.
Jasper, Ind., March 22.—Henry Williams, thirty-seven years old, of Peoria, Ill., who is a cripple, having only one finger on each hand, and Charles Johnston, twenty-seven years old, of Indianapolis, with one leg and one arm off, stole a bottle of gold filling from the dental parlors of Dr. J. S. Stewart. Each entered a plea of guilty to a charge of petit larceny and they are held awaiting the action of the grand jury.

Local Prejudice Alleged.
Wabash, Ind., March 22.—Dr. George E. Snearly, who was indicted by the grand jury for first degree murder in administering strychnine poison, resulting in the death of Sarah L. Snearly, his wife, appeared in court with his attorney and made affidavit that prejudice in Wabash county would prevent a fair trial. A change of venue was asked and the case sent to Whitley county for trial.

Death in Soothing Syrup.
South Bend, Ind., March 22.—Soothing syrup given by the mother to cure a cold caused the death of the five-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kuschowicz. The medicine contained opium, almost enough in a single dose to cause death. The mother could not read English, and not knowing the directions, gave a liberal dose hourly until the child was taken ill.

Keg of Powder Let Go.
Terre Haute, Ind., March 22.—Frank Hogue was killed and Isaac Morris was seriously burned by an explosion of a keg of powder at Wabash mine, west of the city. Hogue was sitting on the keg containing twenty-five pounds of blasting powder when it exploded by a spark from the lamp on his cap.

NOTABLE EXPLOITS OF PETROSINO.

New York's Famous Sleuth, Martyr to the Black Hand.

DARING AND SKILL RECALLED

Cases In Which He Proved Both In Great Emergencies—An Example of His Watchfulness—Desperate Fight With a Thief.

Joseph Petrosino, the detective lieutenant who was recently assassinated in Palermo, Sicily, was the head of what is known as the Italian squad of the New York police department and one of the principal organizers of it. He was the man most feared by Italian criminals classed under the name of Black Hand and was sent to Italy to carry out a plan which was suggested to Commissioner Bingham nearly a year ago by a special agent whom the commissioner had hired to propose ways and means of stemming the tide of Italian and Sicilian crime in New York city.

In person short and stocky, with broad shoulders and muscles like steel cords, Petrosino was physically equipped for the rough work which it often became necessary for him to do. He had more than a fighter's body. He had the mind of a student. In the hundreds of cases which he handled he had used more frequently for his trained brain than for his ready hands.

Joseph Petrosino was born in 1860 in the province of Salerno, in Italy. He came to the United States when he was a boy of fifteen years and started his New York career by selling newspapers at Broome street and the Bowery. He was graduated as a newsboy and became an employee of the Galo brothers, who then held a city contract as scow trimmers. Through this channel he drifted into the street cleaning squad. In those days the street cleaning was done under the jurisdiction of the police department, and so it came about that the young Italian came under the eagle eye of Inspector Alexander Williams, the original "czar of the Tenderloin" and the right arm of Inspector Thomas Byrnes. Inspector Williams lifted Petrosino out of the street cleaning squad and on Oct. 9, 1883, made him a member of the uniformed police force. He served in uniform until he became a regular member of the central detective bureau, in 1895, where he scored his most notable achievements.

It is difficult to select from the long list of cases Petrosino has handled those best showing his methods and instancing his success. The Brogno murder, at Baxter and Leonard streets, New York, in July, 1898, will perhaps serve as a good example. Natalo Brogno was found, unconscious, suffering from a stab wound in the back. Over him stood Angelo Carboni, who was in the act of kicking Brogno when the police arrived. It was learned that Brogno, Carboni and a man named Ceramello had quarreled in a saloon on Leonard street a while before, but Carboni was apparently the murderer. Indeed, the police, at his trial, testified that Brogno had identified him as his assailant, and Carboni was convicted and sentenced to death.

Petrosino was not satisfied, and this is what he did, related in his own words:

After the conviction I hadn't had much to do with the case—I happened to hear of a boy and a watchman who had seen the fight. Some friends told me these two had admitted this. Their story was that Brogno had quarreled first with Ceramello, who was Carboni's father-in-law, but that Brogno first came to blows with Carboni. Brogno knocked Carboni down. As Brogno bent forward from the force of the blow Ceramello stole up behind him and stabbed him in the back. Ceramello then ran away. Carboni didn't see the stabbing, but got up as Brogno fell and was kicking him when the police came.

I couldn't get these witnesses to repeat their story, so I went to the district attorney, who said I'd better go into the case thoroughly. So I started out to get Ceramello. I got trace of him in Jersey City, but he got away ahead of me. I followed him to Philadelphia, then to Milton, in Delaware, every time just too late. Next I heard he was in Montreal, so to Canada I went. In Montreal I heard Ceramello had gone to Nova Scotia. I missed him there, too, and followed his trail back to New York. There I lost all trace of him.

One day, nearly a month after I first went after Ceramello, I was standing at Elizabeth and Mott streets when I saw his cousin. He knew me, but he didn't see me. So I trailed him up to Cortlandt street, in the Bronx. I saw his cousin go into a house, and I watched outside until 2 o'clock in the morning; then I made up my mind that he had gone to bed, and I went to a place near by and slept until 5. Then I got back on watch, followed my man back downtown and saw him buy a ticket for Baltimore. I telephoned to headquarters I was going out of town and bought a ticket for Baltimore too.

I was afraid I would be recognized. Then I wore no mustache, and I pulled a beard out of my pocket and put it on. You couldn't see my face at all after that, and my best friends wouldn't know me. In Baltimore my man went to Corcoran alley. Let me see, this was about 5 o'clock in the evening. Oh, I should have said before that Ceramello, I had heard, was going under the name of Fioni. Well, his cousin went into the house, and I stayed outside, so as not to scare them. The next day I went out at 5 o'clock to get the chief of police to send a man with me to arrest Ceramello, for I felt sure he was there. But, no; it was too early. The chief said I must wait until the detectives came in.

So I went back to the house alone and knocked at the door.

"Come in!" some one said.

I went in. There were three men and a woman on my left and a man leaning over a stove on my right. He answered the description I had of Ceramello.

"Anybody sick here?" I asked.

"I'm from the health board, and I hear you've got smallpox."

Then I turned to the man by the stove.

"What's your name?" "Fioni." "Come here."

There was an ax standing against the wall, and as I spoke I kicked it away with my foot. Then I grabbed the man by the back of the neck and took him downstairs. On the way to the police station he confessed to having killed Brogno. I brought him back to New York, and he was tried and sent to prison for life, while Carboni was pardoned.

Four years later occurred the "barrel murder," one of the most important cases of Petrosino's career. It did not result in a conviction, but Petrosino always believed he had the right man.

The body of a man with the head nearly severed was found in 1902 in a barrel in a tenement on East Eleventh street, New York. There was nothing to show his identity, and it looked at the outset like an impossible case. But Petrosino had a rather distinct recollection of the face of the dead man, and he couldn't get rid of the impression that he had seen it somewhere. Finally he fixed the time and place, recalling him as having attended a trial of a counterfeiter, Giuseppe Diprimo, in the federal court a year or so before. So Petrosino went to Sing Sing to interview Diprimo.

As soon as he saw a photograph of the dead man Diprimo exclaimed, "That's my brother," adding that he had seen him at the prison recently with Tomaso Petto. This man Petto was arrested because he knew Diprimo, because he lived in Buffalo and because a pair of gloves found in the barrel bore the name of a Buffalo store. Then the counterfeiter told the detective that his brother had carried a watch which he recalled bore some deep scratches "on the neck." There the clues seemed to end.

Back to New York came Petrosino.

The pawnshops were raked over, and Diprimo's watch was found, with its scratches "on the neck." More, it was learned that Tomaso Petto had pawned the watch. Then Petto was rearrested, and the pawn ticket for the watch was found in his possession. But, though Petto was held in prison for eight months, the necessary corroborative evidence was lacking. The police were morally sure of their man, but had to consent to his discharge. It is interesting to note that among the men arrested on suspicion in this case were three who, it was learned later, were "wanted" in Italy for murder.

As an example of Petrosino's watchfulness when in pursuit of a criminal the story of Paulo Rondo, who shot and killed his wife in Little Italy in New York six years ago, may be cited.

Petrosino tracked the murderer, who was shielded by his countrymen, to a little village on the outskirts of Long Island City and located him in a house on the ground floor of which was a grocery store. All attempts to get at the murderer proved unavailing. The detective climbed a convenient tree and, hidden by the foliage, kept a watchful eye on the house. He spent a most uncomfortable night, but was rewarded at daylight by seeing a wagon drive up to the door. A large bundle was carried from the house by several men and carefully deposited in the wagon.

Petrosino came down from the tree and as the wagon started away grabbed the tailboard and, seizing the bundle, dragged it to the ground. The covering burst, and up sprang the murderer. A desperate fight ensued. Captor and captive rolled over and over on the ground, the friends of the murderer crowding around and cheering the man they had sought to conceal. They were about to interfere when Detective Sergeant Krauch, who had also been watching, appeared with a revolver in each hand. Then the crowd fell back, the subdued murderer was put into the wagon from which he had been dragged, and in the vehicle brought for his flight he was taken to the nearest police station. He expiated to eleven years in Sing Sing.

Petrosino could fight as well as "sleuth." This he proved when, on March 30, 1896, he arrested Giuseppe Guilianno on a charge of grand larceny.

Guilianno had enticed a homeward bound fellow countryman, Antonio Sperduto by name, to a dive and had given him knockout drops. A week's search located the guilty man in a house on Park street, in New York. The pair wrestled and rolled down the stairs from the third floor to the street. Petrosino got his prisoner as far as a sewer opening, over which they fought for fully ten minutes. Finally the detective, with a viselike grip on the man's throat, forced his head into the sewer opening and swore he would hurl him into the sewer if he did not at once surrender. Not until the man became unconscious was he dragged from the sewer opening, and it was necessary to call an ambulance. Guilianno, who secured only $102 by giving knockout drops to his victim, was sentenced to serve eleven years in Sing Sing.

HOW HE CAME TO DO IT

Cashier Writes Back That He Was Drunk When He Skipped With Coin.

Comanche, Okla., March 22.—John Campbell, the fugitive cashier of the First National Bank, who left a week ago with more than $6,000 of the bank's money has returned $5,000 in a letter written in Denver. He said he was intoxicated when he left, and that he had no intention of stealing. He regretted his action, he wrote, and would return the balance of the amount in a short time. The bank officials have decided not to prosecute Campbell and have withdrawn the reward offered for his arrest.

Wanted in Washington.

Cincinnati, March 22.—George Willard and George Carson, two of the most notorious bank sneaks, pickpockets and all around thieves in this country, were arrested here. Willard, according to the Bertillon records, is wanted in Washington, D. C., for robbing a messenger of the Home Savings bank of $1,052.35 on Dec. 24, 1907.

WILLIE WHITLA STILL MISSING

Promising Clue at Cleveland Blocked by Police.

WATCHED THE RANSOM SPOT

Following Instructions in Letter From Kidnappers Mr. Whitla Left Money in Park, but the Presence of Police on the Scene Prevented the Expected Development—Search For Missing Boy Apparently No Nearer an End Than on the Day the Lad Was Decoyed From the Schoolroom at Sharon.

Cleveland, O., March 22.—A man and a boy believed to be Willie Whitla and one of his kidnappers, are being detained by the police of Cuyahoga Falls. The man claims he is from Harrisburg, Pa.

Sharon, Pa., March 22.—Weary and worn, and showing in his face the terrible strain under which he has been for the last few days, J. P. Whitla, father of Willie Whitla, the kidnapped boy, returned Sunday from a fruitless trip to Cleveland, where he expected to find a trace of his missing son. Upon what information the hope was based was not given out, but a few hours was sufficient to convince him that all the Cleveland clues were false and sorrowfully he returned home.

"We know no more now," said Mr. Whitla, on his return home, "than we did before, and we seem to be no farther along with the search than we were last night."

And yet, in spite of all his efforts having been in vain so far, Mr. Whitla and his family have not given up hope of recovering the boy. It is the general belief here that the abductors, realizing to what an extent the public is aroused over the kidnapping, will not dare open up correspondence with Mr. Whitla at present, but, hoping that something may divert the public attention, will then communicate with the father privately and await his assurances that the whole matter will be kept quiet till after the boy has been returned, the reward paid and they have had time to get away.

The terrible anxiety and uncertainty as to their little son's fate has had its effect on both the parents of the boy. The father refuses to sleep at all, and keeps up through sheer will power. The mother, who will not allow her daughter, Salina, out of her sight, is showing the effects of the worry, and physicians have given orders that she be not allowed to see any visitors.

Hundreds of letters from all over the country continue to pour in from friends and strangers alike, tendering sympathy. But among all the correspondence there has not been one word from the abductors or anyone who seemed to be in any way in touch with them.

FAILED TO SHOW UP

Distracted Father's $10,000 Was Not Called For.

Cleveland, O., March 22.—After failing in an attempt to negotiate a settlement for the return of his kidnapped son Willie, in a park at Ashtabula, J. P. Whitla has returned to his home in Sharon.

Whitla was instructed in a letter from the kidnappers to leave $10,000 in Flatiron park Saturday night. If no detectives were about, the kidnappers promised, they would secure the money and deliver the boy safely to the father in a hotel at Ashtabula at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Whitla deposited the money as requested, but the Ashtabula police learned of the plans to pay the ransom and went to the park. The kidnappers are supposed to have seen them, for the money remained intact and not a man had approached the spot at which it had been left, nor were there any developments at the hotel named.

It is said that Mr. Whitla while in Cleveland met a representative of the kidnappers of his son Willie, and agreed that he would pay the ransom demanded. Mr. Whitla granted to the spokesman. It is said, that there would be no prosecution.

Carrie Met Her Match.

New York, March 22.—Carrie Nation, who has been abroad fighting the saloon, was a passenger on the Baltic, arriving here last evening. It is said that Mrs. Nation, who came in the Baltic's second cabin, for a time made things very disagreeable for her fellow passengers. They reported the facts to Captain Ransom, however, and for the remainder of the voyage there was less trouble as the result of a talk the captain had with her.

Ask For More Than a Million.

Kankakee, Ill., March 22.—The Eastern Illinois hospital for the insane at Kankakee has asked for an appropriation of $837,000 for the ordinary fund, and $390,000 for special purposes for the next two years.

Made of Forest Roots

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and, in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion and torpid liver yield to its curative action.

The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements is as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it, often after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper. CURRENT COMMENT

Wires, Weather and News.

In these days of progressive electrical communication the public has a right to expect the immediate transmission of news, and yet for hours on March 4 the national capital was isolated completely just when the entire country had centered its attention upon events there. The most populous section of the country was almost wholly deprived of information regarding the national ceremony until night. Had mail trains left Washington the morning of the 4th they would have carried the news of the blizzard raging there and the conditions in the capital as far as New York and Cincinnati some hours in advance of the telegraph. Even authorization to publish the inaugural address, which fortunately had been distributed in advance, was with difficulty sent to the press in time for evening editions. It was expected that the wires would go down in the blizzard, but few realized that the old system of wires strung on wooden poles was the sole reliance for news from the political center of the country. Openwork iron posts would be better than wooden poles, and underground conduits still better for more reasons than one. It might be economy in the long run for the companies to install underground wires. Until that is done not only will news often be delayed, but railroad traffic also be held up by blockades from wires and poles wrecked in the storm.

Four cents a pound duty on coffee would grind the people without putting a cent in the treasury for the next two years. The dealers have a supply laid in, but would charge tariff prices, just as they would if it had paid duty.

The way things are a big navy seems to stand for a bigger navy, and the way things look the biggest navy will soon be the only one to have any standing at all.

Government by Commission.

Objections to a commission to handle the tariff problem do not necessarily spring from doubt as to the propriety of the commission in this special case. The tariff is an intricate matter, and at the present time it is a vital one. But the special commission habit is growing, and the functions of government are thought by some to be in danger of a division, which will weaken efficiency. The people must continue to hold their elected representatives accountable and are already paying one body of men to look after the ways and means of running the state. A public utilities commission is expected to aid the executive in work already provided for by law. It is another hand at the machine. But if we must have special commissions to grapple with the ordinary problems of legislation it looks like a confession of weakness in our system. The commission habit may be a bad habit to encourage.

Evolution of the Peacemaker.

Recently Berlin apprised the world in no uncertain tones that Germany is interested in the Balkan question. Evidently the kaiser has learned through his little tilt with the public that it is better by long odds to say a strong thing occasionally than to keep feeding out sensations. In all his utterances on international affairs the German emperor has been consistent with the old doctrine of the realm that a nation can have peace only when it can command respect. That was when Germany saw possible enemies in its continental neighbors.

Now when the kaiser speaks for Germany as a world power there is in his tones the same old ring of assurance that the nation is strong enough to command respect. Once the power behind the imperial frown or threat was a big army. Now it is a big army plus a big navy. Once the cry of the would be peacemaker of Europe was for a big navy; then it was for a bigger navy. Now the same lips demand the biggest navy in order that all the world shall respect Germany's will and mandate. The first martial Hohenzollern ransacked the earth for big soldiers to inspire his neighbors with fear. The Prussian who now aims to do as Frederick the Great would do if he were here wants the biggest navy in order to command the respect of the world, and the world must either take his word for it that he seeks the general peace or it can keep Germany's navy down to second or third rank.

Tone of Modern Stage Reflects the Culture Of Modern Society.

By the Right Rev. DAVID H. GREER, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York.

THAT there is much evil in connection with the theater, much that is low, coarse, base and disgusting, no good man will question, but the purpose of every good citizen should be NOT TO TRY TO ABOLISH THE THEATER, which is impossible, inasmuch as it is an integral factor in our civilization.

EVERY GOOD CITIZEN SHOULD EXERCISE A DISCRIMINATING, CONSCIENTIOUS JUDGMENT IN PATRONIZING THE DRAMA. EVERYTHING THAT DEALS WITH HUMAN PASSIONS, LIKE MUSIC AND ORATORY AND POETRY AND ART, MAY BE AND HAS BEEN ABUSED, AND EVERY ABUSE OF IT SHOULD BE CONDEMNED AND DENOUNCED.

There should also be such a cultivation of purity and refinement of moral sentiment, such strength and vigor of intellectual culture upon the part of the people, that they will not condescend to anything that is VULGAR AND CHEAP in quality or COARSE AND UNWORTHY in its intellectual tone. "The social civilization of a people," says the Earl of Lytton, "is always and infallibly indicated by the INTELLECTUAL CHARACTER OF ITS POPULAR AMUSEMENTS, and of such amusements the stage is by far the most important."

AND IF OUR MODERN STAGE BE NOT OF A VERY HIGH CHARACTER IT MUST BE BECAUSE OF OUR MODERN SOCIETY IS NOT OF A VERY HIGH ORDER. AS THE PEOPLE GROW IN MORAL AND INTELLECTUAL STATURE THEIR POPULAR AMUSEMENTS WILL CORRESPONDINGLY GROW AND BECOME OF A BETTER CHARACTER.

The drama will then become, as the Earl of Lytton says again, "not the resort and the amusement simply of the vicious and the vulgar, but the GREAT AND EFFECTIVE INSTRUMENT by means of which the lofty ideals and heroic types of human life, the great and strong movements of the human soul, will be PLAINLY AND PROMINENTLY DEPICTED before the responsive and educated imagination of the people."

Lapland Reindeers.

In April the Lapp lets his reindeer loose to wander as they please, and when the mosquitoes begin to abound, about midsummer, he collects his herd simply by catching one deer, fitting it with a bell and trusting to instinct, which leads the animals to gather into herds for protection against the mosquitoes, to do the rest. In a cool summer, when mosquitoes are few, this instinct does not come into play, and it is almost impossible to bring the reindeer together.

WABASH GLEE CLUB A BIG HIT

Delightfully Entertained a Good Crowd at Main Street Christian Church.

EVERY NUMBER A FEATURE

W. G. Masters With a Violin Solo and H. L. Reese as Vocal Soloist Made Decided Impression.

The Wabash College Glee and Mandolin Club delighted an audience at the Main Street Christian church Saturday evening. It would be unjust to say that any one number on the program was better than the other, as all were first class.

The concert was opened with a "College Medley" by the glee club, arranged by J. L. Geiger, director of the club. This number started off with a rush and show of spirit that was never lessened during the entertainment. The selections brought forth a long applause from the audience. It was truly a mixture and enabled the club to show its versatility. "The Teddy Bears' Picnic," the second number, was well rendered by the mandolin club and caused rounds of applause that called for an encore which was equally as good. The work of the quartet in the "Hunting Song" was especially good and they were obliged to respond with another selection.

One of the features of the evening was the violin solo, "LeCygne," by W. G. Master. The soloist responded to an enthusiastic encore with Macdowell's "To a Wild Rose" that was one of the most beautiful renditions on the violin ever heard here. Mr. Masters manipulates his instrument well and produces a soft, clear tone that is very pleasing. The glee club sang the "Medley From the South" in such a manner as to cause the audience to call loudly for another number that was responded to with the chorus of several popular songs that made a hit with the young people present.

Harter Masters, the specialty man, with his pleasing manner and genial smile made a decided impression on the audience. He was forced to respond to two encores. His songs were of the "rag time" variety that are usually hard to sing, but his manner of rendering them made it seem easy. The first part was ended with selections from a "Yankee Tourist" by the mandolin club that was well received.

The second part of the program was opened with a popular medley, consisting of choruses from late popular songs by the glee club. The applause was loud and long and the club came back with a song of a similar nature. The solo, "Sea Song" by H. L. Reese, probably made as big a hit as any other number on the program. He was called back for two encores, one being "My Rosary," that was especially well suited for his voice. Mr. Reese has a pleasing stage presence and possesses a voice that is unusually well trained. There seems to be no limit to the range of his voice.

"Spanish Gaiety," by the Mandolin club was followed by another number in response to a lengthy applause. "That Little Peach" by the quartet called for an encore that will be remembered by the big hit it made here last year. "The Ruler" by the mandolin club was followed by the last number of the program "Old Wabash" by the entire club in cap and gown. The selection was sung with vim and enthusiasm that made a decided impression.

RYAN, WINE, TIME AND THEN THE FINE

Is the Story, in a Nutshell, of a Rush County Farmer's Visit in Greensburg.

HE FELL IN AMONG THIEVES

In mayor's court Friday night was unfolded the tale of a Rush county farmer with sporty proclivities, says the Greensburg News, who came to Greensburg with a "wad;" of how he became burdened with a consuming desire for a "little game of draw;" of how after he had partaken of "liquid crime," he fell among Pharisees; how his ambition to "pass 'em" over the green table was realized, and of how he was relieved of a neat little roll of "long green." How at the eleventh hour—or maybe it was later—the "good Samaritan" failed to appear, to rescue him from his sad plight, and he went forth into the darkness of the night, shorn of his "substance," a sadder but wiser man. The victim of this strenuous experience was William Ryan, who filed an affidavit against "Buck" Miller alleging that Miller had "queered" him out of a sum of money in a poker game in Sam Coulter's saloon, Wednesday night.

Miller was found guilty and fined $10 and costs.

Prosecutor Tremain has prepared affidavits against the other participants of the game in question, and an additional one against "Buck" Miller for frequenting a gambling house.

EARLY PREPARATIONS ON FOR CONVENTION

Local Council of Knights of Columbus Receive Word of Proposed Summer Outing.

CONNECTION WITH CONVENTION

According to advices received by the local council of Knights of Columbus, preparations are going rapidly forward for the big annual outing of the order, which is to be held at Cedar Point on Lake Erie, during the week of July 4 to 12.

It is the custom for the delegates to these affairs from the different councils participating to choose each year a different council to take charge of the arrangements, and this year the task has been assigned to Norwalk, Ohio, council, No. 626. A lively little paper, "The Outing," is being issued by the committee of the latter body to keep the members of the order informed as to the progress of the arrangements and the initial number has already been received here. E. J. Ryan, grand knight and secretary of the outing committee, is the editor.

The announcement is made that this year's reunion is to be on a larger and broader scale than ever before and that the program will embody many new and praiseworthy features.

RUSH COUNTY MAY GET MURDER TRIAL

Marion County Circuit Court is Overburdened With Business—A Carnival of Crime.

CASES ARE SENT ELSEWHERE

The Marion county criminal court is burdened with murder cases, and beginning next week and continuing for some time there will be nothing doing in the court but murder trials.

Because of the extraordinary number of cases in Indianapolis recently, it is likely that some of the cases will be venued to other counties, and the Rush county circuit court is likely to get one or more of them. Some of the cases are of a most aggravating character and the death penalty will be urged by the State.

The venue of a criminal case is different from a civil suit. In a criminal case when it leaves a county, it passes to the control of the prosecuting attorney of the court where the trial is held, and he is not necessarily assisted any way by the prosecutor of the first county.

"There ain't nothing so cruel in the world as a gentleman," said he, "but she wouldn't hurt you for all the world, Poleon; only the blaze of this other thing has blinded her. She can't see nothing for the light of this new love of hers."

"I know! Dat's w'y—nobody onderstan's but you an' me."

Gale looked out through the open door, past the sunlit river which came from a land of mystery and vanished into a valley of forgetfulness, past the forest and the hills, in his deep set eyes the light of a wondrous love that had lived with him these many weary years, and said:

"Nobody else can understand but me. I know how it is. I had even a harder thing to bear, for you'll know she's happy at least, while I— His voice trembled, but after a pause he continued: "They neither of them understand what you've done for them, for it was you that brought her back. But some time they'll learn how great their debt is and thank you. It'll take them years and years, however, and when they do they'll tell their babes of you, Poleon, so that your name will never die. I loved her mother, but I don't think I could have done what you did."

"She's purty hard t'ing, for sure, but I ain't t'ink 'bout Poleon Doret none w'en I'm doin' it. No; I'm t'ink 'bout her all de tam'. She's H' gal, an' I'm beeg, strong feller w'at don't matter much an' w'at ain't know much, 'cep singin' an' lovin' her. I'm see for sure now dat I ain't fit for her. I'm beeg, rough, fightin' feller w'at can't read, an' she's de beam of sunlight w'at blin' my eyes."

"If I was a fool I'd say you'd forget in time, but I've lived my life in the open, and I know you won't. I didn't." "I don't want to forget!" the brown man cried hurriedly. "Le bon Dieu would not let me forget. It's all I've got to keep wit' me w'en I'm lookin' for my 'new cuntry'."

"You're not goin' to look for that 'new cuntry' any more," Gale replied. "Today," said the other quietly, "dis afternoon. De blood in me is callin' for travel, John. I'm livin' here on dis place five year dis fall, an' dat's long tam' for voyageur. I'm hongry for hear de ax in de woods an' de moose blow at sundown. I want for see the campfire t'rough de brush w'en I come from trap de fox an' dem little wild fellers. I want to smell smoke in de dusk. My work she's finish here, so I'm paddle away today, an' I'll fin' dat place dis tam', for sure. She's over dere." He raised his long arm and pointed to the dim mountains that hid the valley of the Koyukuk, the valley that called good men and strong year after year and took them to it-self.

"Have you heard the news from the creeks? Your claims are blanks; Your men have quit."

The Frenchman shook his head sadly, then smiled—a wistful little smile.

"Waal, it's better I lose dan you or Necla. I ain't de lucky kin', dat's all, an', after all, w'at good to me is riche gol' mine? I ain't got no use for money any more."

They stood in the doorway together, two rugged, stalwart figures, different in blood and birth and every other thing, yet brothers withal whom the ebb and flow of the far places had thrown together and now drew apart again. And they were sad, these two, for their love was deeper than comes to other people, and they knew this was farewell, so they remained thus side by side, two dumb, sorrowful men, until they were addressed by a person who hurried from the town.

He came as an apparition bearing the voice of "No Creek" Lee, the mingling, but in no other way showing sign or symbol of their old friend. Its style of face and curious outfit were utterly foreign to the miner, for he had been bearded with the robust, unkempt growth of many years, tanned to a leathery hue and garbed perennially in the habit of a scarecrow, while this creature was shaved and clipped and carried, and the clothes it stood up in were of many startling hues. Its face was scraped so clean of whiskers as to be a pallid, white, but lack of adornment ended at this point, and the rest was overlaid wondrously, while from the center of the half brown, half white face the long, red

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds it; strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with nose of Lee ran out. Beside it rolled his lonesome eye, alive with excitement.

He came up with a strut, illuminating the landscape, and inquired:

"Well, how do I look?" "I'm darned if I know," said Gale. "But it's plumb unusual."

"These here shoes leak," said the spectacle, pulling up his baggy trousers to display his tan footgear. "because they was made for dry goin'. That's why they left the tops off, but they've got a nice, healthy color, ain't they? As a whole, it seems to me I'm sort of nifty. But I'm a plain man without conceit. Now let's proceed with the obsequies."

It was a very simple, unpretentious ceremony that took place inside the long, low house of logs, and yet it was a wonderful thing to the dark, shy maid who hearkened so breathlessly beside the man she had singled out. When they had done he turned and took her reverently in his arms and kissed her before them all. Then she went and stood beside Gale and the red wife who was no wife and said simply:

"I am very happy."

The old man stooped and for the first time in her memory pressed his lips to hers, then went out into the sunlight, where he might be alone with himself and the memory of that other Merriody.

The first word of the wedding was borne by Father Barnum, who went alone to the cabin where the girl's father lay, entering with trepidation. He was there a long time alone with Stark, and when he returned to Gale's house he would answer no questions.

"He is a strange man, a wonderfully strange man—unrepentant and wicked. But I can't tell you what he said. Have a little patience and you will soon know."

The mail boat, which had arrived an hour after the mission boat, was ready to continue its run when just as it blew a warning blast down the street of the camp came a procession so strange for this land that men stopped, eyed it curiously and whispered among themselves. It was a blanket man upon a stretcher, carried by a doctor and a priest. The face was muffled so that the idlers could not make it out, and when they inquired they received no answer from the carriers, who pursued their course impassively down the runway to the water's edge and up the gangplank to the deck. When the boat had gone and the last faint cough of its towering stacks had died away Father Barnum turned to his friends:

"He has gone away, not for a day, but for all time. He is a strange man, and some things he said I could not understand. At first I feared greatly, for when I told him what had occurred—of Necla's return and of her marriage—he became so enraged I thought he would burst open his wounds and die from his very fury. But I talked a long, long time with him, and gradually I came to know somewhat of his queer, disordered soul. He could not bring himself to face defeat in the eyes of men or to see the knowledge of it in their bearing. Therefore he fled. He told me that he would be a hunted animal all his life, that the news of his whipping would travel ahead of him and that his enemies would search him out to take advantage of him. He said the only decent thing he could or would do was to leave; the daughter he had never known to that happiness he had never experienced and wished me to tell her that she was very much like her mother, who was the best woman in the world."

GERMS IN HER SYSTEM

Every Woman Should Read This.

The number of diseases peculiar to woman is such that we believe this space would hardly contain a mere mention of their names, and it is a fact that most of these diseases are of a catarrhal nature. A woman cannot be well if there is a trace of the catarrhal germs in her system.

Some women think there is no help for them. We positively declare this to be a mistaken idea. We are so sure of this that we offer to supply medicine absolutely free of all cost in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction or does not substantiate our claims. With this understanding, no woman should hesitate to believe our honesty of purpose, or hesitate to put our claims to a test.

There is only one way to cure Catarrh. That way is through the blood. You may use all the snuffs, douches or like remedies for years without getting more than temporary relief at best. Catarrh is caused by a germ. That germ is carried by the blood to the innermost parts of the system until the mucous membrane is broken, irritation and inflammation produced, and a flow of mucous results, and you can probably realize how silly it is to attempt to cure such an ailment unless you take a medicine that follows the same course as the germ or parasite.

Reall Muc-Tone is scientifically prepared from the prescription of an eminent physician who for thirty years made his specialty Catarrh, and with this medicine he averaged 98% of cures where it was employed. No other remedy is so properly designated for the ailments of woman. It will purify and enrich the blood, stop mucous discharge, destroy all germ matter, remove all impurities from the system, soothe, heal and strengthen the mucous tissues, and bring about a good feeling of health and strength.

We want you to try Reall Muc-Tone on our guarantee. If you are not benefitted, or for any reason not satisfied, simply tell us and we will hand back your money. Reall Muc-Tone comes in two sizes, 50c and $1. Lytle's Drug Store, Third and Main.

French Strikers Returned to Work Today

Paris, March 22.—The great strike of the employees of the postoffice department, which has practically isolated Paris and cut off France from communication with the outside world for the past week, has collapsed. Work in the department was resumed today. The strike committee decided to call off the employees and made the first move to effect a settlement, virtually suing for peace. The government met the committee half way.

Representatives of the linemen called on M. Barthou, minister of public works, Sunday afternoon, ostensibly for the purpose of protesting against the charges that they had cut the wires, but during the course of the interview they communicated to the minister the terms on which the allied associations collectively would resume work. These were, first the resignation of M. Simyan, under secretary of posts and telegraphs; second, that no employee should be dismissed on account of the strike. They also desired the assurance that the delegates of the association should be permitted to lay their grievances directly before the minister of public works.

M. Barthou received the deputation in a conciliatory spirit. He said the government could not discuss the resignation of an official except with parliament, but he practically gave the delegation the satisfaction they demanded on other points, explaining to them, however, that the government had not yet exercised its right of dismissal. He said that warnings had been sent to every striker without exception to appear for duty not later than Tuesday. Moreover, he agreed to receive the representatives of the association whenever they had grievances to present.

Premier Clemenceau later met the deputation and confirmed M. Barthou's statement with regard to the attitude of the government. He appealed to the men, both in the interests of themselves and the country, to put an immediate end to the intolerable situation. At the conclusion of these interviews with the ministers, the strike committee met and decided upon the resumption of work today. This decision was announced at a mass meeting at which 5,000 strikers were present. At first the announcement met with a storm of protest, but eventually it was agreed to.

GREAT WELCOME FOR ROOSEVELT.

Prominent Men to Greet Him on His African Trip.

ARAB RULER INTERESTED.

Youthful Sultan of Zanzibar Anxious to Meet Former President—Governor
James Sadler Will Also Entertain the Hunting Party From America.

When I arrived in British East Africa last spring I heard a great deal on every side about the visit of our former President, Theodore Roosevelt, to the hunting grounds of big game. Whether it was the Arab Sultan of Zanzibar, the Lewali of Mombasa, the English rulers, the German officers or the French colonists, everybody wanted to show their deep appreciation of Mr. Roosevelt.

A man who will wait with intense interest the guest's arrival will be the hereditary Arab ruler of all East Africa, young Ali bin Hamoud, the present Sultan of Zanzibar. I know the Sultan well. When the American Consul presented me to him in the palace in the summer of 1908 his first words were: "I am always glad to meet Americans. Your big country is the one I most desire to see. Your brilliant President is coming to East Africa, and he will have the warmest welcome ever given to a visitor in my domains. You see, we Arabs have the same sense of honor and high worth that you English-speaking people have. It would be the greatest pleasure in the world for me to receive Mr. Roosevelt and to visit America." So spoke the Sultan of Zanzibar, a young man educated at Eton, now twenty-two years of age, dressed like an English gentleman, and speaking the language of Shakespeare without an accent.

On the main land at Mombasa, the Arab ruler is called the Lewali. He is a descendant of a race of kings. He will be on the reception committee at Mombasa. For a long time his Arab ancestors fought the Arabs of Zanzibar, but at last Zanzibar was victorious, and the Lewali of Mombasa is now a finely educated young man, is a subject of the Sultan and under the Protectorate of England. Great Britain rents the shore land for ten miles inland from the Sultan of Zanzibar for $85,000 a year. The hinterland is hers by right of occupation, and a territory of 400,000 square miles, containing 5,000,000 blacks and 3,000 whites, makes up what is called the East African Protectorate. It is here and in Uganda, another territory at the head waters of the Nile, that the most of the hunting is to be done. The two side trips of most importance are the one projected into the Congo in search of white rhinoceri, and the one toward Lake Rudolph on the Abyssinian border. There is also a fine trip to the Kilimanjaro and German East Africa in contemplation.

Now, one of the men who will be prominent in the entertainment of the Roosevelt party is Gov. Sir James Sadler of the East African Protectorate, who has a fine bungalow at Mombasa and one at Nairobi, 337 miles in the interior, at an elevation of 5,500 feet. Sir James is a man of open heart and kindly disposition. He has been undeviatingly in favor of giving the blacks their own land and all their rights. Some of the colonists think that Gov. Sadler is kind to the natives and the Hindus at the expense of the white men. He expelled the Hon. Mr. Bailey and Lord Delamere from the legislative assembly at Nairobi last year because those gentlemen were actively working against the game preserves and the reserves of land for the Masai and other tribes.

Mr. Bailey and Lord Delamere are both rich men and very popular, and they will unquestionably be among the British colonists to welcome and greet the big man after big game. I understand that Gov. Sadler is going to have Mr. Roosevelt as his guest in the famous bungalow, or Government House, which looks off from the rocks of Mombasa out upon the Indian Ocean, on a view unparalleled anywhere in East Africa.

Mr. Currie, manager of the Uganda Railway, and Mr. Sweeney, his assistant, are both good, progressive Englishmen. They told me that all conveniences that could conduce to the health and comfort of the visitors on the railway line of their journey would be put at the command of the popular American hunter. They have actually made improvements in their rolling stock and introduced new ice plants to please and help their distinguished visitor. This Uganda Railway, finished in 1902, runs from Mombasa to Lake Victoria, 584 miles, and along the greater part of it the game is protected on one side of the track. On the right hand side of the track hunters may shoot, and it is here that Mr. Currie and the railway officials will make all arrangements for trains to stop; and cars are to be equipped with everything that can make the hunt at this point an assured pleasure and success. There are hundreds and thousands of wild game in sight of the railway car windows.

The party will likely proceed directly to Nairobi, the capital of British East Africa, 337 miles inland. Here Gov. Sadler and Vice-Gov. Jackson will for a part of the time have Mr. Roosevelt as a guest. But at Nairobi is the famous American, Mr. William N. McMillan, who has a charming wife and whose boundless wealth and genial hospitality are known all over the country. Mr. McMillan I met in August. He was having his town house at Nairobi—a handsome bungalow—fitted up with electric lights, and rooms were being added to it that he may enable the former President to stay at this American home while he is getting ready for his big safari (journey). There are nearly seven hundred Englishmen in and around Nairobi; and they will have receptions and horse races, banquets and speeches. In the Nairobi post office one day I was addressing a picture postal to Mr. Roosevelt, who was then President, and an English pioneer farmer came in and saw it. He said to me: "If you know Mr. Roosevelt, tell him I have a farm ten miles square, with forty wild buffaloes on it. We are keeping them in the hope that your President will give us a look in."

Mr. McMillan is a nephew of Senator McMillan of Michigan. I asked him why he continued to live in Africa. He replied: "I don't know. No man knows what fascinates him with this wild country. I have Africanitis, I suppose. And I hope the President, when he comes, will find it as enjoyable as I always do. I have a farm of 20,000 acres and I can take him to rhino and wild buffalo, as well as lions, within fifty miles of Nairobi, and show him the wildest life he will find in Africa. We are simply rejoicing in the anticipation of the fun and sport and good fellowship we shall have with such a popular and high minded and distinguished man as Roosevelt. We Americans are going to make it evident that we have a big man with us."

If Mr. Roosevelt will take my advice he will not miss the Kilimanjaro Mountain and the Taveta Forest, on the borders of German East Africa and in the Province of Moschi. He can get a train from Nairobi back to Voi, about two hundred miles. From Voi to Burra among the Taita Hills is twenty-three miles. At Burra he will find the English collector, a great and skillful hunter. Then he will cross the Serengeti, a desert of scrub for fifty miles, full of lions, leopards and hyenas. There I had two donkeys eaten by lions and a dog eaten by a leopard. Across the Serengeti there is a good road, built right up through British territory to German East Africa and Marangu, in the Kilimanjaro region. While I was there in August, 1908, eleven elephants were killed by British and German sportsmen in one week.

At Taveta Forest on the border of German and British East Africa, lives the best sportsman in the whole continent of Africa, and Roosevelt cannot afford to miss a hunt with him—my friend, Mr. Hyde Baker, the English Commissioner. He has shot 200 elephants and an equal number of lions, besides a host of game and birds for Baron Rothschild. Tall and straight, and in his prime, Baker is the man nearest Roosevelt's ideal in Africa. Baker is the only white man who ever saw an okapi (the newest animal to science) alive. He shot it in the Ituri forest for Baron Rothschild.

Mr. Baker talked with me about the visit of America's foremost hunter. He said in a simple, boyish way: "Tell the President if he comes my way I will show him all the game." That was not much to say, but when it's all it's a great deal, for this man knows all the game from the Zambesi to the Nile.

In Moschi Roosevelt will find a glorious hunt in Sergeant Major Bast, of the Moschi Askaris (native troops). Herr Bast has killed two lions before breakfast. He has shot rhinoceri by the score and lived among wild beasts for twenty years. He is the best authority on the Masai, the famous hunting warriors, in the world.

Continuing his journey to Uganda, the tide of enthusiasm will not abate when the indomitable "Teddy" reaches the Nile country and the Japan of Central Africa. The English Governor of Uganda, Sir Hasketh Bell of Entebbe, on the shores of Lake Victoria, is a redoubtable hunter. A picture in Entebbe shows the Governor surrounded by all kinds of trophies—lion pelts, zebra skins, buffalo horns, elephant tusks. Governor Bell will give the former President of the United States the freedom of Uganda. The Governor's new house at Entebbe will be open to the coming lion hunter.

The King of Uganda, Banda Chwa, a boy of twelve, grandson of that famous Mtesa, who entertained Stanley, told me, while his eyes sparkled with boyish glee, that nowhere could the President find such big bull elephants as in Uganda. He drew me a map of Uganda and marked upon it the famous hunting spots in his big kingdom of 150,000 square miles.

There is a hotel at Jinja at the Ripon Falls, but here is a good Irish Episcopal minister, Archdeacon Buckley, and a good Catholic priest, Bishop Hanlon. These distinguished prelates expect to help make the President's stay among the wild men of Bukedi and the cave men of Mount Elgen an interesting and pleasing one. They are no vain carpet knights, these brave missionaries. They cross savage morasses for 300 miles alone, unaided save by their granite faith. Said Archdeacon Buckley to me at Ripon Falls: "Send Mr. Roosevelt to me and I will take him a hundred miles into the depth of the Bukedi country, where men live in trees and are still cave men. We shall see great elephants and buffaloes who hunt the hunter, and we shall most of all appreciate the visit of a brave, true hearted man."

"Roosevelt is a primal man, and also a man of ripest civilization. He is a rarer specimen of our kind than the okapi of the Congo forests, and where he goes go good hunting, brave thoughts, brave deeds. His collection of specimens and game, his interviews with the colonists and the half savage kings and chiefs will be heard and read of with a universal interest. He will say and write just what he means, and his word to the white men and the black men in the forest will be that of a good man with a fine brain and a great big sympathetic heart. No man since Livingstone, I dare believe, will influence Africa more than Theodore Roosevelt, a notable hunter and a worldwide citizen."—Peter Macqueen, F. R. G. S., in New York Telegram.

TALK ON TARIFF TO BE LIMITED

No Great Floods of Oratory Threaten House.

DISCUSSION IS OPENED TODAY

Mr. Payne Laid the Tariff Bill Before the House For Discussion and Made the First Argument in Support of It
—Following Him, Champ Clark,
Leader of the Opposition, Presented
His Views Favoring the Other Side of the Question, and Debate Is Now Open.

Washington, March 22.—The house of representatives today began the serious consideration of the business for which the extra session of congress was called, the revision of the tariff.

The Payne bill, which had only been read in the house, was today laid before that body for discussion, and Chairman Payne of the committee on ways and means made the first argument in support of it. This was the beginning of the general debate on the bill, and it is expected this order will proceed for several days. Mr. Clark, the minority leader, followed Mr. Payne with the first speech in opposition, and these two representative members will in turn be followed by other members of their respective parties until all who so desire shall have spoken.

So far, Messrs. Underwood, Griggs and Ransdell of the Democratic side have given notice that they desire to be heard, but no such notice has been received from any Republican member except Mr. Payne. Mr. Dalzell has frequently stated that he would not make a set speech on the bill.

It is not expected that the general discussion of the measure will be prolonged, and on this account Mr. Payne thinks it will be unnecessary to bring in a rule for its limitation. Apparently he is not so hopeful regarding the consideration of the bill for amendments. When this order is reached the provisions will be discussed in speeches of not more than five minutes duration, but there will be so many suggestions that unless a limit is fixed the debate could be extended indefinitely. So far nothing has been said as to the program for this limitation, but it is considered inevitable. It is the intention of the Democrats to offer innumerable amendments, and it is understood that many Republicans will also suggest changes. In all probability, therefore, after the five-minute speeches shall have continued for a reasonable length of time, an order will be introduced, fixing a time for the final vote. It is not believed, however, that the voting stage will be reached within less time than two weeks hence. The senate will probably consider and pass the census bill during the week, but it is not believed the measure will be discussed at any length. The disposition in the senate is to accept the bill as it passed the house. The time in the senate today is being devoted to the re-organization of the senate committees.

BILLIARD CRACKS MEET

Contest For 18.2 Championship Will Open at New York Tonight.

New York, March 22.—Seven of the world's greatest billiard players will begin tonight a two weeks' tournament for the championship title at the eighteen inch balk line game, two shots in. Six of the men are Americans, and the seventh is Louis Cure, the leading player of France. Among the contestants is almost every well known American professional billiardist except Willie Hoppe and Jake Schaefer. Willie Hoppe decided not to enter the tournament because of differences with the company in charge of the competition, and Schaefer is not in good health.

Besides Cure, the men who will play for the championship title are George F. Slosson, the world's champion at 18.1 billiards; George Sutton, who recently lost the 18.1 title to Slosson; Calvin Demarest, the former amateur champion; Ora C. Morningstar of New York; Albert G. Cutler of Boston and Harry P. Cline of Philadelphia. The tournament will begin tonight and last until April 2, afternoon and evening games of 500 points apiece being played.

HORSEMEN INTERESTED

Many of America's Best Horses Entered For British Meet.

London, March 22.—The opening of the English racing season this week with the Lincolnshire handicap begins a season full of interest to sportsmen on both sides of the Atlantic. Many of America's best runners are entered in the big English events, and leading native horsemen have given it as their belief that the foreigners will carry off some of the stakes.

Among American horses which are heavily handicapped in the Epsom Derby, the Liverpool Spring Cup, the Great Jubilee handicap and other big races are Colin, Ballot, Fair Play, Priscillian, Sir Martin, Norman III, Delrium and other cracks.

NO LACK OF BONDSMEN

Cooper Bail Bond Signed Up to Nearly $1,500,000.

Nashville, Tenn., March 22.—After having filed a bond totalling nearly $1,500,000, Colonel D. B. Cooper and Robin J. Cooper, convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary for the killing of former United States Senator E. W. Carmack, are now discussing the next move in the case. Although Judge Hart fixed the bond at $25,000 for each defendant, there was a rush to sign it on the part of wealthy citizens of Nashville which fairly swamped the clerk in the criminal court.

Immediately after the return of the verdict the defense moved to set it aside because of a previous verdict of disagreement, and asked the court to declare it a mistrial. Judge Hart said he would listen to arguments on this motion later. He then fixed the defendant's bond at $25,000 each, which amount was acceptable to both sides.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT GROWS REMINISCENT

Talk About a Butter-In Recalls a Texas Incident.

New York, March 22.—Former President Roosevelt arrived from Oyster Bay early this morning, and in company with officials of the steamship company, made a careful inspection of all the baggage of his hunting party on board the steamer Hamburg at Hoboken, in order to see that everything was right and tight for the four weeks' trip to Mombasa. The baggage was checked for Naples. Mr. Roosevelt was shown a dispatch stating that a gentleman from the west would join the expedition here as an additional member.

"I don't know anything about it," said Mr. Roosevelt. "If anyone else is going, I don't know. If they try, I think there will be some way to stop them. There is a story that a man went to Texas with a .22-caliber revolver, and a cowboy said to the newcomer: 'Stranger, if you shoot me with that thing and I find it out I'll kick you out of Texas.' Well, if I find anyone trying to follow me, I may think of the cowboy story."

While in a jovial mood regarding his trip, Mr. Roosevelt laughingly refrained from talking about it. "I want to say now that I do not intend to make and will not make any statement regarding my African trip or on any other subject here, at Naples or Mombasa, so that any appearing as coming from me will be false on its face."

Mr. Roosevelt seemed surprised when informed that several delegations from civic and political organizations from various parts of the country would be at the dock tomorrow and that several thousand people undoubtedly would be on hand to give him a parting cheer as the steamship goes out.

"Gracious me," said Mr. Roosevelt, "you don't really mean to say there will be such a crowd as that. Are all those people coming? There will be no speeches nor statements from me at the steamer."

The intelligence that many packages had been received at the pier from various friends containing everything from an assortment of pills to cure all the evils that flesh is heir to in the jungle, to ammunition and guns, caused Mr. Roosevelt to exclaim: "I might say now that I have engaged all my equipment, and I won't take them. I won't even look at them. It's no use to send those things to me."

Mr. Roosevelt said he was a private citizen and as such he was entitled to a private citizen's right and would decline to make any statements on American political affairs.

Immediately upon the arrival of the steamer Hamburg at her pier Sunday a score of carpenters and decorators were set at work remodeling the suite of staterooms that Mr. Roosevelt is to occupy during the first stage of his journey to Africa. The original imperial suite consisted of only three rooms. The alterations will make the suite one of five rooms.

War Cloud Blowing Over.

Belgrade, March 22.—Peace is regarded as assured. It was semi-officially stated that the powers will invite Serbia to declare the question of the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina settled and to disarm and discharge its reservists. Furthermore, it is said that the Serbian government will accede to this request, thus opening the way for direct negotiations between Austria-Hungary and Serbia for a commercial agreement.

Prisoners Blown From Guns.

Peshawur, British India, March 22.—It is reported that 1,200 arrests have been made at Jellalabad, Afghanistan, in connection with the plot recently discovered to murder the ameer, the heir apparent and the other members of the royal family. According to advices batches of prisoners are being blown from guns daily.

Caused Service to Be Dismissed.

St. Louis, March 22.—Mrs. Georgia Wheeler, organist at the Gibson Heights Presbyterian church, dropped dead Sunday as she entered the organ loft to play the first hymn of the morning services. As soon as it was discovered that life was extinct, the congregation was dismissed.

New Enterprise in Rushville is Welcomed by Those Who Have Use For It.

CONDUCTED BY A YOUNG LAD

There is a new institution in Rushville which is growing in great proportions daily. It is a one man affair conducted by a hustling, enterprising little boy who is barely knee high to a duck. Elmo Demmer, a typical messenger boy, who delivers the yellow envelopes for the Western Union, has inaugurated an A. D. T. service. Aside from his regular duties he delivers packages, perfumed notes to petticoats, runs errands and does other emissary work for a small fee. His business is growing so rapidly that he contemplates putting a trailer on his bicycle.

HIGH PRAISE FOR THE MUSIC

Committee of Men's Big Meeting Expresses Appreciation.

The Men's Big Meeting Committee wishes to publicly thank both the ladies and the gentlemen, who kindly assisted with the music for the series of Men's Meetings held in our city during the past winter. Their music was highly appreciated and the committee takes this opportunity to express that appreciation.

The committee also wishes to thank the A. P. Wagoner orchestra for their excellent services and for the excellent music which was furnished by this orchestra during the series of meetings.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

A HOME KEELEY CURE.

(Connersville News.)

In view of the inevitable drouth that is to strike Connersville in early autumn, the following tip, from a Washington physician, is timely though it is a little hard on the meat trust:

"If you have a strong appetite for King Alcohol and tobacco and want to be cured of the habit, just eat a vegetable diet for six months."

This was the advice given today by Dr. D. H. Kress of this city, in an address entitled "Dyspepsia and its Relation to Inebriety," before the American society for the study of alcohol and other drug narcotics. He discussed the evil effects of an excessive diet and declared that over-eating leads to drunkenness. "If you would not become a drunkard," said Dr. Kress, "then quit eating meat."

A Guaranteed Cough remedy is Bees Laxative Cough Syrup. For coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, hoarseness and all bronchial affections. Best for children because it is quick to relieve and tastes good. Gently laxative. Sold by Lytle's Drug Store.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Vaudet theater tonight the film to be shown is "Love and Law." The Mayme De Russell Co. will talk the highly interesting subject "A Mountain Feud." Miss Clara Gregg will sing the illustrated ballad, "I Never Knew What Love Was Until I Met You."

"The Cord of Life" is the title of the film to be shown at the Grand theater tonight. The subject is a thrilling episode of Sicilian revenge, how one man attempts to wreak vengeance on another by slaying his child. Miss Iva Brown will sing "I Miss You Like the Roses. Miss the Rain."

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" says: "What yer face needs is—smiles." In "The King of Tramps" which comes to the Grand theater Wednesday night, March 24, there is nothing but smiles. The sort that comes from honest merriment, caused by irresistible enthusiasm, from following the continuous moving panorama of comedy and music which for three hours float merrily along in front of you. "Laughing with Philander" is the following day's by-word, for truly Philander Tickle Pickle, the sunny "Tramp" will get you going and keep you moving with his quaint sayings and musical tongue. "Happy? why happiness is my stock in trade; when the world looks dark to me I just put all my troubles down at the bottom of my heart, then I sit on the lid and smile."

Run Over by an Ox Team.

It is seldom that we hear of ox teams nowadays, but there are many people who feel so lazy and drowsy that if an ox team came along they would not feel able to get out of the way. For such people there is no remedy equal to Seline Pills, the great nerve and body builders. Price $1.00 a box; six boxes $5.00, with full guarantee. Address or call Hargrove & Mullin, Rushville. This is the store that sells all the principal remedies and does not substitute.
